POPO CARNES SANAS

YET ANOTHER TERM FOR PRESIDENT DIAZ

account of the lack of logic in making it, or by the surplus of malicious ness displayed in the invention of it.

"I have gained my military promotions step by step, as rewards for active service in time of war and only within the last few years, when I was given that of general of division, was I favored by the president. He then awarded me the blue band, after twenty years as brigade general, during which time I fulfilled important commissions and high commands in Sonora, San Luis Potosi and the border states.

"And, pray, what has my political career been? Whether of little significance, it is well known by the purity of its thoughts and ideals, by the constancy which I have followed, by the evident loyalty to the superior government, which exacts patriotism of all citizens and honor of every soldier.

Rumors Are Abroad.

"The supposition of which you have made mention is entirely absurd, it breaks without touching me, when it strikes the well tempered battered wrought cuirass of my past history. Furthermore, this could have only been born of a vulgar and untutored people.

"When the nation withstands the loss of the ruler that up to this time has so ably and patriotically taken it to the goal of success, then will it experience the great proof, the moment of trial for the future of Mexico.

"Then we should rise and once for all show to the world at large that Mexico is a nation worthy of figuring side by side with the powers that boast of being progressive and up-to-date. Then should it be when the entire nation should rise to show that an entire life and effort and endeavor such as that of General Diaz, has not been fruitless.

Should Uphold Vice President.

"Our duty, if such a sad event should occur, as patriots, would be to uphold the vice president.

"In this manner, and only in this manner, we would be able to favor and foment the practice of democracy, and be able to claim a reign of peace and prosperity to which by rights we are entitled.

"The political parties, upholders of principles, high and lofty, are nothing else but the mirrors of public opinion and public will. They are helpful to democracy, and undoubtedly we are nearing the epoch when they should rise and develop, however, without disturbances nor disagreements. Perhaps the president will live to see them flourish and help them and place them upon the track to success.

Personal Parties Harmful.

"Purely personal factions without principles, are harmful to any government, in an equal degree to the monarchic and to a Republican government. When, by means of intrigue, they are able to gain dominion all their views are guided towards vengeance, all their energies follow the idea of preserving the power which they have gained and all their ambitions center in the personal interests.

"Against these personal factions the wise extinguisher mentioned by President Diaz in his interview with Mr. Creelman should be used at all times.

"It is true that parties formed from other high principles of government need personalities, because principles at the best are abstract, and hence they require someone to take on to the practical end; but in this case there is an enormous difference, in other words the people making the principle or the principle guiding the people."

Importance of Recent Riots.

"And do you believe that the riots lately occurring at Viesca and other border points, have had any importance, and express the sentiment of any political party or faction?" I asked Governor Reyes.

"It is well known," he said, "not only in Mexico but in all the world—every nation with which we are cultivating friendly relations have done us justice—that such mutinies had no importance whatever. They were considered as mere acts of brigandage, the work of bad Mexicans who, not being able to live in Mexico without being persecuted by the courts, fled to foreign countries where they have entered upon the infamous industry of conspiration against their government, seeking refuge on the other side of the Bravo. There, united by evil-doers who frequent the frontiers in order to escape easily from the clutches of justice, they have prepared armed outbreaks and attacks fit for highway robbers and which shall never attain a political importance. This serves to prove that there exists a sound national judgment and an unshakeable state of peace founded upon the confidence which arises from honest and fruitful labor to which the great masses of Mexico are now devoted and which has been brought about by the energetic, wise and prudent policy of Porfirio Diaz.

"The prompt action of the government put an immediate check upon those hostile manifestations and those who took part in the recent outbreaks have been either arrested or ar at present fugitives from justice.

Credit of Mexico Not Affected.

"The credit of Mexico, as it is well known, was not affected in any way on account of these disturbances, which, by the way, often occur and assume greater proportions in other countries. The recent disturbances themselves have tended to exhibit the unconquerable firmness of our government in repressing disorders of this nature and in affording ample guaranties and protection to foreign and native capital which is devoted to the development of our commonwealth.

"The true principles of democracy, however, will be best attained and practiced through the firm and serene evolution of progress but never through revolutionary movements, particularly during the present era of material progress and advancement."

"And do you think, General, that the United States will support that evolution of which you speak?"

Attitude of United States.

"I believe that if the United States does not look with favor upon our evolution towards democracy, they have no reason to forestall it, for they love its principles and are besides our friends.

"Dignity, honesty, justice and benevolence are four virtues which a nation should exercise in its relations with others. Dignity before the strong, if it be necessary to show it; benevolence before the weak; and justice and honesty in its obligations with all.

"Resuming the subject while enlarging upon certain features of the case, I might properly remark," added General Reyes, "that the continuance of President Diaz at the head of the nation will give more strength and firmness and much more prestige to the institution of the office of vice president, which in turn will naturally insure any untoward or unhappy event in the future. His continuance will enable him, in the office in which we should place him, to allow his sucessor to exercise power according to the law, and this will be a favorable policy for our democratic evolution.

Strong Vice President Needed.

"Now we must consider the choice in the next election of a vice president a post at all times, and particularly in the special circumstances which confront us at the present time, most interesting and important. In view of the fact that we have for so long a time entrusted the guidance of our affairs to General Diaz, and as all his past heroic life guarantees to us the continuance of his best efforts for the good of Mexico, we must seek a candidate for the vice presidency amongst those who surround him now, amongst those who are held in his confidence and share with him his state secrets. Otherwise, we will jeopardize the progress which he would wish to continue in the line of his preparations for the future of the nation.

Such a situation (the choice of a man outside the circle of the president's confidence) would not only be illogical, but would take on the character of an impolitic impediment which would hinder the unrolling of the high plans of our president. He, with the greatest of devotion, should, without question, carry out the closing acts for the improvement of the fatherland to which he has dedicated himself in all affection. That country still demonstrates the necessity of his personal presence for a yet longer period, to the end of insuring its prosperity, of effecting the necessary political improvements which its republican entity demands, and of securing the future great glory, immortalizing the honor which belongs in all justice to that eminent servant."

SALTILLO'S BIG FEAST

TO PAY DEVOTION TO OUR LADY OF THE SNOWS.

TERCENTENARY NEXT WEEK

Vast Crowds Are Expected and High Dignitaries of the Church Will Be in Attendance—Ceremonies Will Be Wednesday and Thursday.

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Saltillo, July 31.—Extraordinary preparations are being made by local church members, headed by Bishop José Maria Echavarria, to celebrate the day of the patron saint of the Saltillo cathedral, Our Lady of the Snows. The celebration will begin August 5 and continue two days.

These days are celebrated every year in this city and bring thousands of people here from neighboring towns and settlements to take in the festivities, but this being the three hundredth anniversary of the appearance of the Virgin, special arrangements have been made for the ceremonies during the two days.

Church dignitaries from the neighboring dioceses, including the bishop of San Luis Potosi, will assist in the ceremonies. Already the archbishop of Monterey has arrived in Saltillo to assist in the preliminary arrangements and devotions at the cathedral.

Besides the church festival proper, the populace on these days are generally treated to a splendid exhibition of fireworks from the tower of the cathedral, as well as the burning of numerous set pieces before the doors of the church. These exhibitions this year will be of unusual magnificence, judging from the arrangements now going on.

The 6th of August is the one day in the year when the Plaza de Armas presents a vast sea of hats when seen from the surrounding buildings, as the people crowd together in such a manner as that all traffic is suspended around the plaza. For this year's celebration, an even greater crowd than usual is expected. Arrangements are being made for special police protection.

BOY'S HAND IS CRUSHED BY FALLING BAR OF IRON.

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Monterey, July 31.—While he was working on a bolt cutter at Smelter No. 2 yesterday morning, a bar of iron weighing 200 pounds fell on a 13-year old boy's hand, badly mashing two of his fingers. He was quickly taken home, where his fingers were carefully dressed in the hope of saving them from amputation.

NEW SOCIETY AT TORREON

Workingmen Organize For Advancement of Members.

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Torreon, July 31.—The society known as the Gran Circulo Mutualista de Torreon, having for its object the advancement of humanity in general and the educational advancement of its members in particular, has leased the new two-story building on Avenida Juarez, adjoining the Star Grocery company, and has there established its headquarters. The society will shortly inaugurate its new home with a grand ball, preparations for which are now being made.

At a recent general meeting of the society, Francisco Medina Baez was elected president and Professor José C. Cadena, vice president. Both of these men are well and favorably known.

The members of the society are principally of the better and more advanced class of working men.

COL. HUNT BUYS GREENE'S BIG LIVESTOCK COMPANY

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Chihuahua, July 31.—Colonel Charles F. Hunt, of El Paso, has bought out the Sierra Madre Livestock company of Colonel W. C. Greene. This company was organized nearly two years ago to put sheep on the lands of the Sierra Madre Land and Lumber company.

Colonel Hunt gets upward of 10,000 head of sheep. He will then leave them where they are for about sixty days, when he expects to move them to the lands of the Succession de Pablo Martinez del Rio, not far from Villa Ahumada, this state.

Colonel Hunt also contracted, while here, for the purchase from General Luis Terrazas of 23,000 head of beef cattle to be shipped to the United States. The first shipment of 3,000 head will be made next week to a ranch in South Dakota. These will be three-year-old steers. Twenty thousand head of four-year-olds and over will be shipped in September and October to California. These are the months when the cattle of Chihuahua are the fattest, on account of the splendid patsurage following the summer rains.

RATERO GETS A NECKLACE

Monterey Man Robbed While Talking to Some Friends.

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Monterey, July 31.—While standing in the door of a store talking to several friends of his, Emilio Cantu was robbed yesterday of a valuable necklace estimated to be worth at least $1,500, which he had in a fine jewel box, as he thought, safely stowed away in his inner coat pocket. Mr. Cantu claimed he had just been trying to sell the necklace to a certain dealer who was not in when he called and that he stopped at the store to see his friends.

A few minutes later a sneak thief named Estrada was arrested by the detective put to work by the police department, and when he saw he was in for it, he made a complete confession, claiming he had committed the theft as a joke on Cantu.

TRIES TO KILL AN OFFICER

Unknown Man Shoots at Director Politico of Ocotlan.

Special Dispatch to The Herald.

Guadalajara, July 31.—Director Politico Benjamin Gomez Cruz of Ocotlan was fired upon several times by an unknown party Wednesday night, but fortunately escaped injury.

At a late hour at night Mr. Cruz was about to retire, when he heard a shot near his house. He went out into the street, where he encountered a man who immediately opened fire on him, discharging several shots. The officer responded with his pistol, and the man ran away, joining others in his flight.

Mr. Cruz pursued the fleeing men and was joined by several gendarmes, but owing to the darkness the miscreants made good their escape.
